

5 things we're thankful for this Thanksgiving Season

Thanksgiving is a perfect time of the year to reflect on the past 12 months and appreciate what we are thankful for this year. As this is our first Thanksgiving as Statherós Financial Solutions, we wanted to share five things that we are thankful for as we approach the holiday season.

1. Our People

We are so grateful for each and every one of our employees at Statherós Financial Solutions. With dedication, passion and pride, we are able to keep our jobs fun and enjoy each other's company throughout the years. After a year of much change and uncertainty, we are beyond thankful that we are all still here, still together and still offering and serving the best solution to our clients. It's not necessarily the "financial solutions" that make what we do so unique and special, it's who we do it with that makes a difference.

2. Our Relationships

The friendships and longstanding relationships we have with our clients, both old and new, make our jobs interesting and make each case we work on different. We value the input and advice we've received from our clients and we use that information to continue to better ourselves, our solutions, and our strategies. We are so thankful for their motivation and loyalty, especially during this unprecedented year.

3. Our Military and First Responders

To our First Responders, and their family members serving us locally: firefighters, police officers, EMTs, paramedics, 911 operators, dispatchers, emergency services personnel, security guards, law enforcement, nurses, doctors, and public safety officials (and their families) - thank you. You make our communities exponentially safer with your selflessness. Your life's sacrifice give us the ability to make ours routine. At Statherós Financial Solutions, we are deeply appreciative of everything you do to help and protect those around you.

To our military members, at home and abroad, and their families: Your commitment and willingness to make the ultimate sacrifice goes beyond appropriate words. The months and years away from your families, while in hostile territory, gives us the ability to live free each and every day. At Statherós, we understand this freedom is anything but free.

4. Industry Peers and Connections

There's always more to learn and ways to hone our skills. Our industry is loaded with leadership and experts in all different breadths of advice and service. We are thankful for their experience and being able to learn from them. We are so appreciative for the peers we've made in our cousin industries that continue to educate us on topics like taxes, group insurance, TPAs, recordkeepers, and other employee benefits. Together, we can better help others.

5. Our Health

The COVID-19 pandemic has proven harsh on businesses – local, national, and abroad. We have witnessed the financial hardships and emotional tolls that this year has placed upon our clients, and our loved ones. We are grateful that our friends and families remain healthy and safe, while holding a positive outlook towards the future. 2020 has given us a fresh perspective on what is truly valuable in this world – health, family, and love.

We hope you have a wonderful Thanksgiving!
